Abells, Channa Byer. (1986). The Children We Remember. 48 pages. Greenwillow. Black and white photos tell of the Jewish children in Nazi Germany, contrasting their happy lives before Hitler with their plight after he came to power.

Bergman, Tamar. (1995). Along the Tracks. (Translated from Hebrew by Michael Swirsky). 256 pages. Historical fiction. Based on a true story, this is the tale of Yankele, a Polish boy who is separated from his family during the German invasion of Poland in WWII.

   Historical fiction. This exciting story is based on a true story of how 20 French children hid 10 Jewish children during the German occupation.

   the history of anti-Semitism, Hitler’s rise to power, and the annihilation of the Jews, specifically in the Auschwitz concentration camp.

   year old Ellen shares her views of WW II. She discovers that war is not a game and some times her problems at home seem more important than a distant war.

   During World War II. Dutton. Informational 166 pages. The civil rights of the Japanese Americans were denied during W W II. This book examines the plight of this group of people.

   examines the year that the United States entered World War II.

   Yearling. 120 pages. biographical. An eight year old Jewish boy is hidden by a Christian family at the risk of their own lives, during WW II in Poland.

   II*. Scholastic. 80 pages. Biographical. Ordinary men and women were thrust into the ravages of war and performed extraordinary feats of courage.

   Illustrated by Stacey Schuett. Albert Whitman And Company. As she rescues the insides of a feather pillow which has been town, Grandma tells about her childhood in Poland, about the Nazi persecution of Jews during WWII, and why the pillow is special to her.

   young boy growing up in England during W W II tells of his expereinces and his thoughts on the war.

   Persecuted by the Nazis*. 176 pages. Houghton. biographical. Friedman supplies historical background and personal narratives of non-Jews who were sent to concentration camps and suffered under the Nazi rule.

   Biography. Varian Fry describes the methods he used to get thousands of hunted men and women to safety.

   of WW II.

   fiction. A 12-year-old girl befreinds a German POW who has been brought to a camp outside her hometown in Arkansas.

   1944, while here brother is fighting in WW II, eleven-year-old Margaret gets a new view of the school bully when she finds him hiding his older brother, an army deserter.

Hest, Amy. (1991) I Love You, Soldier. Historical fiction. Seven-year-old Katie’s father is a WW II soldier. Katie and her mother live in New York City. They help a family friend whose husband is a soldier also. Katie’s father is killed. The family must deal with grief and going on with life.

Innocenti, Roberto & Christopher Gallaz. (1985) Rose Blanche. 32 pages. Creative Education. Historical fiction. A young German girl defies authority by sneaking food to Jews and political prisoners held in a concentration camp. She is killed near the end of the war in a cross fire. This picture book needs adult introduction and supervisoin.

Kerr, Judith. (1972). When Hitler Stole the Pink Rabbit. 196 pages. Putnam. Historical fiction. In 1933, Anna and her mother and brother rush off to Switzerland, where they reunite with Anna’s father and begin their journey as refugees from the Nazis. The sequel is The Other Way Round.

Leitner, Isabella. (1992). The Big Lie: A True Story. Scholastic. 79 pages. Informational The author tells of her own experiences in Nazi occupied Europe. She explains how she was forced to wear a yellow star and obey strict rules.

Lowery, Lois. (1989). Number the Stars. Houghton Mifflin. 140 pages Historical Fiction. Annemarie and her family risk their lives to shelter their Jewish neighbors and to eventually help them escape.

Manley, Joan. (1996). She Flew No Flags. 272 pages. Historical fiction. A young girl has a unique adventure on a ship under blackout conditions during WW II.

Marrin, A. (1982). The Airman’s War: World War II in the Sky. Antheneum. Informational Personal anecdotes are used to explain the experiences of the bomber crews and fighter pilots during World War II.

Louise Stearns

Mochizuki, Ken. (1993). Baseball Saved Us. Historical fiction. 32 pages. Scholastic. A young Japanese American boy tells how baseball gave his people a purpose while enduring the injustice and humiliation forced on them during their imprisonment during WW II.

Oppenheim, Shulamuth, (1992). The Lily-Cupboard. 32 pages. Harper Collins. Historical fiction. During the German occupation of Holland, Miriam, a young Jewish girl, is sent by her parents to a country farm to live with a Dutch Gentile family, who finds an unusual place to hide her.

Reiss, Joanna (1976). The Journey Back. Scholastic 215 pages. Historical fiction. Annie is 13 and she and her sister have hid from the Nazis for 3 three years. Her mother is dead; her father is distant and distracted. She must build a new life for herself.

Richter, Hans Peter. (1961). Friedrich. Scholastic. 150 pages. Historical fiction. Friedrich and his best friend were growing up in Germany in the late 1930s. Friedrich found himself left out of many activities because he was Jewish. What will happen to him?

Taylor, Theodore. (1994). Bomb. Historical fiction. A personal view of the testing of the first atomic bomb on an island in the Pacific is told from the perspective of people who had lived on the island.

Louise Stearns

Vos, Ida. (1986). Anna Is Still Here. 140 pages. Scholastic. Informational. For three long years Anna hid from the Nazis and never saw her parents. The war is over, but Anna is three years behind in school and her parents won’t let her talk about what happened.

Wild, Margaret & Vivas, Julie. (1991). Let the Celebrations Begin! 32 pages. Orchard Books. Historical fiction. A child, who remembers life at home before life in a concentration camp, makes toys with the women to give to the other children at the cery special party they are going to have when the soldiers arrive to liberate the camp.
